

CLINIC RECEIVES GIFT

BELGRADE – Her Royal Highness Crown Princess Katherine together with her sister Mrs. Betty Roumeliotis delivered a new obstetric delivery table to the Obstetrics and Gynecology Clinic Narodni Front. The delivery table worth more than 16,000 euros is a donation from Lifeline Humanitarian Organization - Toronto Office. It represents a symbolic gift on the occasion of the recent birth of HRH Prince Stefan, son of TRH Prince Philip and Princess Danica, on February 25 in Belgrade.

being a mother and grandmother is the most beautiful thing. “Therefore, I want for Serbia and for our people to have more and more mothers and children, because the children are our future. Our doctors and our health system are becoming better and better every day, so pregnancy and childbirth are much easier these days, in good and professional surroundings. Love each other and give birth to children!”

“This is not the first obstetric delivery table that my Foundation donated to a maternity clinic in cooperation with Lifeline. However, this time there is an additional symbolism, since our grandson Stefan was born recently in Belgrade,” said Princess Katherine. She went on to thank Lifeline Toronto for the valuable donation. Her Royal Highness added a message to women in Serbia that

The donation was a result of the appeal of Prof. Dr. Zeljko Mikovic, acting director of the Obstetrics and Gynecology Clinic “Narodni Front” who emphasized the importance of this most modern medical equipment in health care institutions. The Obstetrics and Gynecology Clinic “Narodni Front” has a tradition of 60 years behind it and a professional team of around 150 experienced doctors who work in 20 departments, providing healthcare for women and new-born babies.

SNF AT DUQUESNE’S INTERNSHIP EXPO

by Milos Rastovic

PITTSBURGH, PA - McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts, Duquesne University, hosted its first annual Internship EXPO on February 20, 2018. Many Duquesne Alumni, organizations, companies, faculty members, and students were present in the Charles J. Dougherty Ballroom. It was my honor to represent the Serb National Federation at this event where all participants could learn more about the main missions of the oldest Serbian fraternal society in the North American Continent.

Dr. James Swindal, Professor and Dean of McAnulty College, wished a warm welcome to all participants and stressed the importance of mutual cooperation among Duquesne University students, faculty, and businesses. According to Dr. Swindal, building such relationships can benefit everybody including society in general. Duquesne University will continue to perpetuate this effort to help students pursue their career goals as well as encourage businesses to reach students for the job market.

Current students spoke about their experience with internships, what they expect in the future from internships and jobs for which they wish to apply. Duquesne Alumni pointed out their career path from graduation to the high positions they currently hold in the business world. It was interesting to hear the experiences of all of the participants and the problems they face in searching for internships and jobs and while working at positions in businesses.

I talked about the two main missions of the Serb National Federation, (1) Economic: to protect its members giving them financial stability with life insurance products and retirement plans, and (2) Cultural: to perpetuate Serbian heritage, culture, and tradition for more than 100 years. The advantage of working in a small but respectful organization like the SNF is to learn more about how a smaller business runs. Students have opportunities to learn different aspects of work from the ground up. Knowledge in small business companies can be useful for students who want to work in corporations.

This event was a great opportunity to build and network with sponsors and students, which benefits the whole society. We join all participants in thanking McAnulty College and Graduate School of Liberal Arts for sponsoring this event and would like to express our hope that they continue this effort for many years to come.
